WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

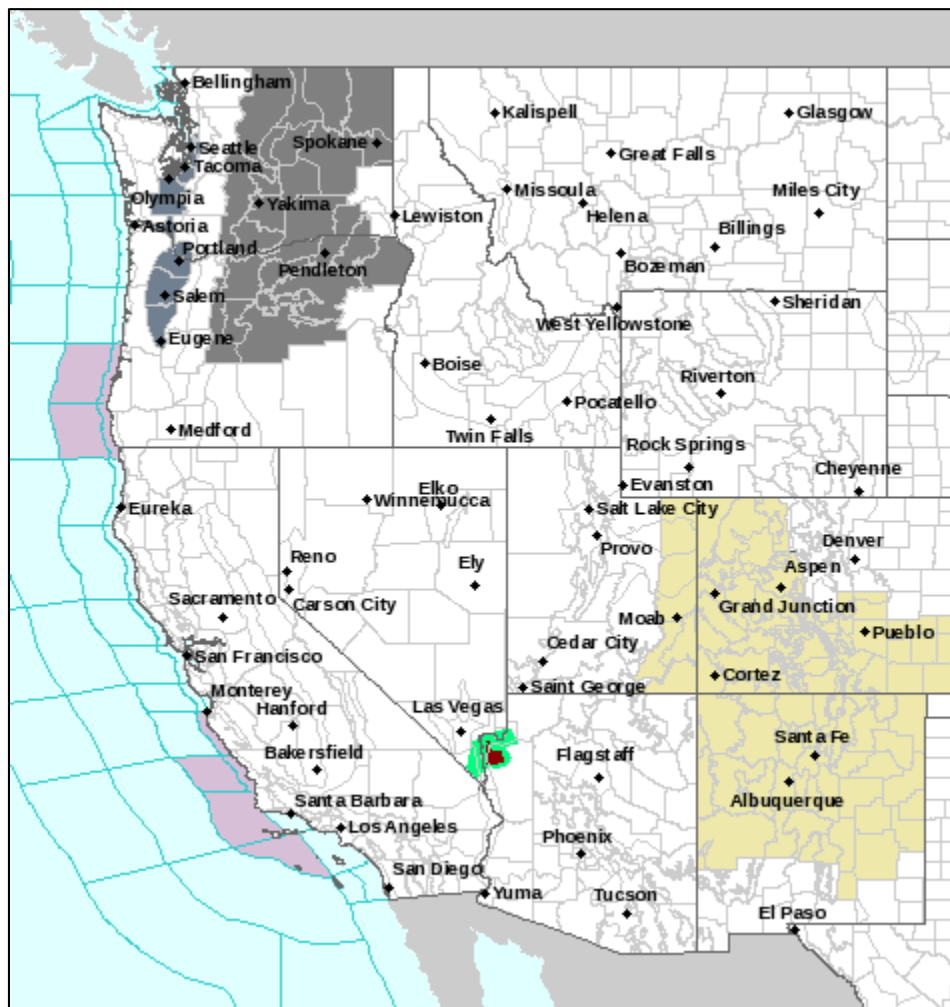

- After today, high pressure will strengthen through the week before breaking down some Sunday/Monday.
- Wind speeds generally on the lighter side through the week although there will be periods of localized gusty W-SW-S wind favoring Tuesday and weekend plus a weak period of downslope N-NE wind Thursday-Thursday night.
- Potential for a Northerly wind event by middle of next week.
- Temperatures above normal by 5-15 degrees next 7 days with warmest readings late week and weekend.
- Modifying humidity, especially western areas, but teens/20s remaining across portions of the area during the afternoon's.
- Periods of light precipitation will be possible across the far NW during the next 7 days, otherwise the area looks to be devoid of precipitation chances.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

- A weak Pacific trough currently overhead will move off to the east Tuesday. High pressure to our southwest will build into California Wednesday through the end of this week. The high pressure will weaken slightly this weekend.
- Maximum temperatures will remain near to a little above normal through Tuesday, with upper 50s and 60s across the mountains and mid 70s to mid 80s in the valleys.
- Minimum humidity will be mainly between 15% and 30% through Tuesday.
- Temperatures will warm Wednesday through the end of this week and be 5 to 10 degrees above normal late this week.
- Minimum humidity will drop to 12% to 25% Wednesday through Friday.
- Some slight cooling will occur this weekend.
- Winds will be light through this weekend.
